THE N°. 131.

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

Containing the freshest Advices, Foreign and Domestic.

WEDNESDAY, October 28, 1747.

GENOA, July 1.

ON the 16th ult. there arriv'd a Felucca from Monaco, with advice, that on the 24th of that month there arrived a great convoy of Spanish troops, under the convoy of 4 gallies, and that the grand Prior of France was there with 6 Gallies and 3 Galliots. It was observed the Day that the Fire of the Enemy began to diminish. In the evening we received, by an express, the welcome news that 15,000 French infantry were arrived at Stefano, and Nofra Senor del Arma, followed by 2000 grenadiers, and 14 Spanish battalions. The deserters unanimously report, that Count Schulemberg is preparing for his retreat. Yesterday morning 20 low 2 large String of Mules laden, take their Route for Lombardy, which we conclude was part of the enemy's baggage. Don Augustin d'Arnada is come to take upon him the command of the Spanish forces, in the room of the Marquis Taslin deceased.

Cremona, July 11. The English squadron that was before Genoa is retired to Vado, with a view to prevent the French from landing any troops upon the coast. We have it from good hands that in the last great council of war held at Turin, his Sardinian majesty gave it as his opinion, that the siege of Genoa should go on. General Count Brown spoke afterwards for 3 hours, in order to shew the indispensible necessity they were under of raising that siege, in order to prevent the ruin of her Imperial majesty's affairs, as well as those of the king of Sardinia; his arguments had so great weight, that the king himself, and every body present, came over to his opinion, upon which an express was immediately dispatched to Count Schulemburg, with the resolution taken in that council.

Chambery, July 12. His Catholick Majesty signified not long ago his inclination to accommodate matters with the court of Turin, but his Sardinian majesty rejected the offer.

Paris, July 21. We flatter ourselves with the speedy assembling of a new congress, upon the credit of some letters from Flanders, in which it is insinuated, that General Ligonier has had divers conferences with some of our great men, which may probably be productive of an accommodation.

Vienna, July 15. O. S. Letters from Vienna say that they begin to talk there of a new congress, and that Aix la Chapelle will be the place pitched upon for holding it, in case all the parties concerned are willing to hear once more what overtures each of them have to make towards a general pacification.

Leuwarden, July 22. The states of this province have agreed to raise 2,000,000 of florins for the defence of their dear country against the arms of France.

Dendermonde, July 23. Lieutenant-General de Contades, who commanded in Dutch Flanders, is gone with all the troops that remained in the country of Waes to join Count Lowendahl before Bergen-op-Zoom, which makes a vigorous resistance, and the garrison is determined rather to be buried in the ruins, than give up the place.

From the Head Quarters at Castella, in the Island of South Beveland, July 25.

"Lieutenant General Smissart thought proper to remove the head-quarters hither, for the Assistance of Bergen-op-Zoom. We have slightly sent thither several gunners, and we continue daily sending boats on board the squadrons of the Vice admirals Schryver and Mitchell, such as are inclined to undertake that service. There are 150 pieces of heavy cannon in the place, exclusive of what is in the lines, and what they may have received from the island of Wolcheren. On the 22d there were safely carried into the town, and the camp of Prince Saxe Hildburghausen, a supply of 1200 oxen, 300 hogs, and 600 sheep; they have corn and flour enough, and if they had not, we could supply them sufficiently for six months. The two Deputies, Van Haren and Vareth, neglect nothing to inspire both the garrison and the inhabitants with the invincible resolution to defend the place that Bergen op Zoom, which 8 times has besieged for the eleventh time, will not, by being taken, ever preserve its antient glory."

Rotterdam, July 26. We were agreeably surprized with the news that Prince Waldeck was arrived yesterday in the afternoon in the neighbourhood of this city, and that he had taken up his quarters at Dunendahl, which is but two leagues from hence. We hear nothing but the praises of this general, and the excellent conduct he has made use of in his march, which is indeed incontestable, considering the ground he has traversed, and the position of the enemy; notwithstanding which, he took his measures so well, as to gain a full march of a body of French regular troops that had orders to observe his motions, and to arrive here without the least interruption. It is believed that he will continue his march to-morrow for the place of his destination, and we hope to receive very soon the news of his having fulfilled his glorious design, of obliging the enemy to quit our frontiers.

Extract from the LONDON GAZETTE, of August 1.

"Letters from Turin mention, that the King of Sardinia had resolved, and was setting out for Coni, to head his army, consisting, it is said, of 100 battalions, and 30,000 horse, Austrians and Sardinians.

Hague, Aug. 8. N. S. The garrison of Bergen-op-Zoom continues in good spirits, and seem determined to defend themselves to the last. The French go on slowly against Fort Rover, yet were got in 4 places near the palisadoes of the covered way; that 80 volantiers had slipped behind one of the batteries of the French of 24 pounders, and nailed them up without the loss of a man; that the French had replaced them with two 12 pounders, which the night following were attacked by the same volantiers, and brought into the town safe; and that Lowendahl had got the French officer hanged next day on the battery. Yesterday the Prince of Orange received an express from Bergen-op Zoom, advising, that on saturday night, the French after springing a mine under the saliant angle of the covered way, had attacked the same with such vigour, that they forced themselves into the covered way, but were soon repulsed with great slaughter, and the loss of 1500 men killed on the spot. During the time of the assault, the garrison sprung a mine that blew up two whole companies of grenadiers. The loss of the garrison was 350 men. All accounts say the French are very lucky, occasioned partly by the stench of their dead, which lie in heaps about them, the garrison not allowing them time to bury them. Last Friday the states of Holland unanimously resolved to raise 10,000 militia, to be composed of so many five companies of 100 men each, to be raised according to a determined repartion for every town and city in this province. The same resolution contains besides, an exhortation to all Magistrates to see that the burghers, in their respective districts, be regularly exercised and taught the use of arms."

LONDON, July 18.

The Hon. Edward Boscawen, Esq; lately appointed a Rear Admiral, sets out for Portsmouth in a few days, to take the command of a squadron which is speedily to sail on an expedition of great importance.

We learn by private Letters from Rotterdam, that a little before the Town of Bergen op Zoom was invested, Mr. Henry Adam, the Elector Palatine's receiver general, burgomaster, and postmaster, in the place, withdrew privately from thence, with all his effects, in consequence, as is supposed, of some private order from his court, which shews, that the assembling the Dutch barrier on the side of Brabant, is a thing that was long ago resolved in the French king's council, and is designed for the town before-mentioned, perhaps the taking of it is to be attended with extraordinary consequences.

The French have lost between 5 and 6000 men in the siege of Bergen-op-Zoom; and the Hussars have taken a courier from Count Lowendahl to the French king, with dispatches, supposed ing, that if he was not speedily reinforced, his army would be ruined, and he should be obliged to raise the siege.

The history of the marquisate of Bergen-op-Zoom is in few words this: It was erected by the Emperor Charles V. in 1533, in favour of Antonio de Glimes, his favourite. Since that time it has descended by heirs female to several good families; the last heiress was Mary-Anne, of the Bouillon family, who married John Christian, Prince Palatine of Sultzbach, by whom she had issue; the present Elector Palatine, who is consequently, in right of his mother, Marquis of Bergen-op-Zoom; but the States General have a right to keep a garrison there for the security of their frontiers. It is very remarkable that Lewis XIV. in 1672, did not care to risk the glory of his arms by besieging this Place.

July 25. The last Letters from Paris contain some very important Particulars; in the first place it is said that they have received advice there of the Dutchess Dowager of Parma, Mother to the Queen Dowager of Spain, died in the 77th year of her age; that they had also advice of the Death of King Stanislaus suddenly in Lorrain; but that it was concealed for fear of affecting the Queen; that Marshal Saxe had complained to the King of the Behaviour of several Lieutenant-Generals in the late Battle, which had occasioned much Confusion, and that it was generally believed neither the Marshal nor Count Lowendahl would be able to keep their ground, if the attack of Bergen-op-Zoom failed.

There is an Account from Madrid, that an Express was sent to Chamberry, to order that no more of the Spanish Troops should join the French.

Yesterday Morning the Right Honourable the Earl of Sandwich embarked at Greenwich for Holland.

Exiles, near which the Battle was fought between the French and Piedmontese, is the Key of the Valleys upon the River Doria, which runs by Susa and Avigliano, or Veillane, to Turin, the Capital of the King of Sardinia's Dominions.

They write from Cologne, that they had certain Intelligence from the French Camp of the Arrival there of a Courier from Marshal Bellisle, which had thrown the Court into a great Consternation, by bringing Advice of the total Rout of the French Army at Exiles, wherein the Chevalier Bellesle, with 300 Officers, and several Thousands of Men, were killed on the Spot; and that unless a speedy and considerable Reinforcement was sent to the Marshal, it would not be possible for him to maintain his Ground, or prevent the Austrians from returning to the Siege of Genoa.

It seems the King of France very narrowly missed being burnt to Death at St. Tron, occasioned by the Straw that he and his Nobles lay on catching Fire whilst the King was asleep, which burnt the House down in a very small Time, and the King was forced to escape in his Shirt.

Extract of a private Letter from the Hague, July 29.

"Count Lowendahl sent to the Governor of Bergen-op-Zoom to demand a Suspension of Arms, in order to bury the Dead; and the Answer returned was, that if he had attacked the Place according to the Rules and Rights of War, his Demand should certainly have been granted according to the usual Custom; but that having begun the siege like a mere Incendiary, and by setting Fire to the City, a Resolution had been taken neither to demand or grant to him any Suspension of Arms."

August 11. We learn by private Letters from Lisbon, that the Spanish Queen Dowager's Retreat was altogether involuntary. She had a Mind to revive a dormant Law, in Favour of a presumptive Successor, by which Arragon, Navarre, and Catalonia, should have devolved to Don Carlos, and to facilitate her Design, was carrying on very dangerous Intrigues in the first-mention'd Kingdom, for which, it is said, some Grandees, who were embark'd with her, will be call'd to a severe Account, as she is little belov'd by the Spaniards in general, though from particular Indulgencies granted with that View, she has a strong Party in Arragon.

The Queen Dowager of Spain keeps up her Spirits to such a Degree under her Disgrace, as to turn her Retreat into a kind of Triumph. Before she left Madrid, she went to take her Leave of their Catholick Majesties, and was accompanied when she left the Place by the Cardinal Infant and the Infanta. We are farther told, that she was saluted by the Crowd, (perhaps a Mob hired for that purpose, as hath been frequently done in other Countries,) with loud Acclamations of Long live Elizabeth Farnese, and her illustrious Family. As yet she has not fix'd upon the Place of her Retreat, but for the present she is gone to reside at St. Idlefonso.

Last Tuesday arrived at Hampton, the Ship Prudent, Capt. Sinclair, from Bristol, in 32 Days; by whom there are Papers to the beginning of September, the Particulars of which will be in our next, having Room only for the following.

Extract of a Letter from Rotterdam, dated September 1.

"Since my last we have had no Cessation of firing [illegible] till last Night: This Morning our Letters attir'd from Bergen-op-Zoom, wrote Yesterday at Noon, and all agree, that every Thing to that Time went very well; that we had forc'd the French to erect a Battery nearer to our Works than any they had yet raised; and, when ready to play, blew it up, and all that were upon it; the Number destroy'd were at least 500; a likewise sprung two more Mines with very good Success. It is generally thought the French attacking Stik Fort by Kyk in de Pot, is to secure a Passage to a Well near it, on the Mud, which is overflow'd at high Water, but when the Tide is out, is very good fresh Water; and this has been so scarce in the French Camp, as to sell for three Stivers a Bottle, which they have been oblig'd to fetch from this Well at the Hazard of their Lives. General Baronini's Party has fallen in with one of their Convoys coming from Antwerp, and destroyed it, and was very near taking a General Officer Prisoner, which one of the Hussars wounded; a Detachment of French coming up, they were forc'd to leave him. On Wednesday last the Detachment made by the Duke arriv'd at the Oudenbosch, as did several Battalions out of Zealand, which makes that Army near forty Battalions strong, and at least ten thousand Horse, with the Irregulars; and it is generally thought they will get between the French Camp and Antwerp, in order to cut off their Convoys, which sometimes consist of 800 Waggons: All the Horses, Waggons, and Boors in that Part of Flanders, are press'd for the French Service, and a fine Harvest must rot on the Ground. But notwithstanding all the Strength we have had, and all their Efforts, we now look upon it as a Thing impossible for them to take the Town, and expect every day to hear of the siege being broke up; but don't make ourselves at all uneasy should they stay longer before it, knowing it must ruin their Army, and, without an unforeseen Accident, have no Success.

General Chanclos commands the Flying Army, and we are in momentary Expectation of some great good News. It was reported the French had got a Reinforcement of 20,000 Men, but it is not believed, knowing that Saxe could not spare so many. It is generally thought he has been forc'd to send a Reinforcement to Italy. All this great Good must be in a great Measure attributed to England, and the good Conduct of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland. The French have as yet made a Detachment from their Grand Army to Lowendal, as we have been before-hand with them. I hope in my next to give you an Account of the French being gone."

ANNAPOLIS,

The following is a Copy of a Letter from Lieutenant Joseph Carr (who went in Capt. Campbell's Company from this Place, and assisted at the Reduction of Canada*) to a Gentleman in Virginia.*

SIR,

THE News-papers have inform'd you of my Misfortune at Saratoga. We were indeed overmatch'd, for we Men behaved ill; some threw away their Pieces, without ever firing of them; others fired once and ran off. The Enemy consisted of about 320 French and Indians, commanded by Mons. St. Luc; who used me very genteelly, as did many other Officers. I was carried to Crown Point; from thence to Mount-Real, and from this Place I went with the Captain of the General Guards to Quebec. Here I was used a little roughly, being lodged in a House 20 Feet Square, where I made the 18th Man. Our House and Yard were palisaded round: The Yard contained Half an Acre; in it were three long Tents covered with Plank, where the other Prisoners lodged. Our Lodging was a small Blanket, and a Straw Bed; and whenever it rain'd we all were wet. Our Allowance was a Pound and a Half of Bread, Half a Pound of Beef, and a Gill of Rose per Day: We in the House had a further Allowance of 15 sols per Day each, on which we might have liv'd very well, could we have had the Liberty of laying out the Money; but those that had it did what they pleased. I have had extraordinary Fortune; first in being the only Man of five who received the Fire of Forty of the Enemy, submitted and then to be so soon relieved. On the 27th of July we left Quebec, 170 in Number, many of them having been Prisoners above two Years.

CANADA

CANADA is a large but Country, and if our Governments could but unite, might be reduced; then a Stop would be put to the Disturbances of our Frontiers, and prevent our being murdered by Piece-meal.

Crown-Point is a strong Fortification, but has very poor Guns. From thence to Mount-Real is 150 English Miles, along a fine Lake, a fine Country on each side, but all deserted. From Mount-Real to Quebec the Distance is 180 Miles, along the River St. Laurence, which is Inhabited on both sides; it is likewise Inhabited for 150 Miles below Quebec, and I may venture to say, few Houses are above one Mile from the River in all this Distance. In short, the Country may be taken, if we have a Mind; and I can assure you it is well worth the fighting for.

Four Hundred Regular Troops are all they have at Quebec. The Militia have often marched out, in sight of our People, but never before July exceeded 240, then they were 7000; and all the Canada Nobility were out to view them: Many Officers came to tell us what a Number of Men they were. The Marquiss de Beauhornois is Governor and General of New-France: His Will is the Law, and Disobedience is Death. The Militia never receive any Pay; and if they get a Firelock when they go on an Expedition, they deliver it to the General on their Return. The King's Soldiers pay is one Sol per Day; his Allowance a Pound and a half of Bread, and a Quarter of a Pound of Pork.

I am, &c.

Joseph Chew.

P. S. I reckon there are 221 Churches in Canada, and 300 Men, young and old, to each Church.——Query if his Meaning be not Souls?
